Highway Department Ready
For Emergencies

Mackey Ford road, between Routes 23 and 104, was closed to traffic Tuesday by floodwaters of the Scioto river and Charles Mowery, county superintendent of state highways, said at noon that there is a possibility that Route 22, west of Circleville, would be closed during the afternoon.

The river was continuing to rise
at noon, and water was within 10 inches of the surface of Route 22.
In the event the road is inundated traffic will be detoured over the Island road through Fox. Arrangements were worked out with the county engineer's department to have the bridge over the river of the Island road open to traffic. It has been closed each day while a new floor is being installed, then opened at night.

The flood waters went over the Mackey Ford road at 2 a. m. Mowery said there was 18 inches of water over the road about 8 a. m.

Others Not in Danger

He said that no other state highways in the county were affected by the flood waters. Darby creek almost flooded Route 104 at Dewey park.

Dr. H. R. Clark, weather recorder, was unable to obtain any measurements on the river. The official gauge has been broken for some time and repairs have not been made.

Monday noon the river was bank-full but few persons believed the high waters would flood more than the low bottom lands.

Rainfall in Circleville in the 24 hours previous to 8 a. m. Tuesday amounted to .56 of an inch. Since Sunday noon the rainfall totals
1.68.

GERMANS AWAIT
HITLER'S RETURN
AS "LIBERATOR"

BERLIN, March 15 — (UP) — Fuehrer Adolf Hitler is expected to return to Germany on Thursday
to be greeted as "the liberator of Austria."

The impression was growing today that Hitler in future would make Munich his headquarters
more than Berlin. The report, still unconfirmed, persisted that Herman Wilhelm Goering might be appointed chancellor, with Hitler taking the title of "Fuehrer of Greater Germany."

ST. LOUIS PROTECTS
GERMAN CONSULATE

Anti-Nazi Demonstrator Sets Fire to Swastika Flag Flying
From Office Window; Official Protests Destructive Act

ST. LOUIS, March 15.—(UP)—Police guarded the German con-sulate today after an anti-Nazi demonstrator burned a swastika flag flying from a window of its offices in a skyscraper.

Dr. Herbert Diel, consul, protested to city officials and termed the incident "an insult to my country."

"It must be remembered," he said, "that this flag is the official flag of the German government, not the emblem of a party. I am deeply shocked at this treatment of it."

A crowd in the street cheered while an unidentified man leaned
from a window on the 13th floor of the building and set fire to the flag, flying from the 14th floor,
with a blow torch attached to a pole.

The cheers drew the attention of consulate attaches, who hauled in the flag before it was destroyed.
Police, who a few hours earlier dispersed a crowd attempting to enter the consulate to protest against the display of the swastika, searched the building futilely.

The burning was the second attempt in three hours to destroy the flag. Earlier another unidentified man, leaning from the same 13th floor window, hooked the flag with an umbrella handle but was prevented by police from tearing it from the mast.

Dr. Diel told authorities that he realized the burning was the act
of an individual, and said: "I do not believe the attitude it expressed is typical of that held by the American people."

BURNING TANKER
SENDS SOS FROM NEAR GALVESTON

GALVESTON, Texas, March 15
— (UP) — The U. S. coast guard station here received an SOS call today from the tanker Andrew Jackson which reported it was in distress in the Gulf of Mexico.

The tanker radioed its position
as 150 miles east of Galveston.
Fire is raging in the hold.

A coast guard cutter was dispatched immediately.

The tanker's position was approximately 80 miles southeast of Lake Charles, La.

The U. S. weather bureau reported fresh to strong southerly
winds off the Louisiana coast.

Democrats and Republicans
Join In Resolution
For Investigation

WASHINGTON, March 15—
(UP)—A Democratic-Republican
coalition today introduced a resolution in the house and senate
for a comprehensive 10-man joint congressional investigation of the New Deal's Tennessee Valley authority.

The identical resolutions, drafted
at a secret conference last night,
were designed to check efforts of administration leaders to provide the most powerful political immunity of the 1938 campaign.

Sen. H. Styles Bridges, R., N. H., and Sen. William H. King, D., Utah, in the senate, combined with
Rep. Walter G. Andrews, R., N.
Y., and Rep. Andrew J. May, D., Ky., in the house to sponsor the resolutions. House Minority Leader Bertrand Snell, R., N. Y., participated in the conferences but the T. V. A. inquiry advocates failed in efforts to get Rep. Maury Maverick, D., Tex., to join them.

U. S. Fleet Begins Secret
Drills in Pacific Waters

SAN PEDRO, Cal., March 15—(UP)—The U. S. Fleet moved out to sea early today for the 1938 war games that will give the Pacific coastline defenses a rigorous test of ability to repel a naval attack from a foreign power.

The sailings began shortly after midnight and at 2 o'clock
were well under way.

The fleet movement was kept a naval secret and it was impossible to distinguish which ships were in the vanguard as the warships moved through the channels of the Los Angeles-Long Beach breakwater.

For six weeks, approximately 60,000 officers and men on more than 150 surface craft and 400
warplanes, will engage in mock battles testing theories learned in the 19 years experience and study
since the World War.

Bloch on Pennsylvania

Admiral Claude C. Bloch, commander-in-chief, was aboard the flagship U. S. S. Pennsylvania
when he ordered the fleet into action.

The departure originally was scheduled for Monday but was delayed for unexplained reasons.
Shore leave was up at midnight
and the sailors thronged aboard
the ships last night from docks
crowded with families and sweethearts.

Hitler "Accepts"
Austrian Nation

25,000 Troops Goose-Step Past Reviewing Stand; Seyss-Inquart Named Governor

VIENNA, March 15.—(UP)—(By telephone to London)—The pride of the German army goose-stepped past Fuehrer Adolf Hitler today as he formally accepted Austria into the German Reich and proclaimed its "future mission"—to be the newest eastern frontier
of greater Germany and its defender against enemies.

War planes roared overhead as infantry, cavalry, artillery, tanks and armored cars passed in review before the Fuehrer, who stood on the steps of the old Hapsburg palace facing Heroes' Square and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Approximately 25,000 German and Austrian troops marched past
in the review.

In accepting the entrance of his homeland into the Reich as "the greatest accomplishment of my life," Hitler gave hint of the promised land of Nazism when he said:

"By work and industry and co-laboration, we will solve the great social problem."

Hundreds of thousands were massed around the square, madly cheering Hitler and the troops. It was the most impressive military display Vienna has seen since the World War.

While the pageantry was in progress, the speedy work of Nazifi-cation of Austria continued. Regulations for the April 10 plebiscite were issued and they included this sentence: "Jews are excluded from voting," typifying the repression of the Jews which is in progress in the country.

Hitler's speech came between the ceremony of laying a wreath
on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the military review. Its high point came when he said solemnly:

"As Fuehrer I report the en-

NEW PLANE MAY MAKE EUROPEAN VISITS COMMON

FARMINGDALE, N. Y., March
15.—(UP)—The Seversky Aircraft Corp. announced today that it had designed a "super-clipper," capable of carrying 120 passengers and a crew of 16 across the Atlantic in 12 hours, which could be converted into a bomber with a cruising range of 12,000 miles and a speed of 300 miles an hour.

The plane was designed by Major Alexander P. De Seversky, former Russian army pilot, in response to a request by Pan-American Airways for specifications for planes to be used in its proposed Atlantic passenger service.

"We believe that in this design
we have a ship which could make travel between the United States and Europe virtually a common occurrence," De Seversky said.
"Week-ending abroad would not be too improbable. Withal, there would be the convenience of a modern ocean liner."

The plane would be powered by eight liquid-cooled, 2,000 horse power engines, each able to generate 2,300 horsepower on the takeoff. With a pay load of 43,000 pounds, it would have a cruising range of more than 5,000 miles, minimum cruising speed of 250 and maximum speed of 300 miles per hour, and would carry 17,000 gallons of gasoline.

Circleville police opened a drive
on the "numbers" racket Tuesday.

Two Franklin countians, alleged to be "pickup" men in the "numbers" game, were arrested by William McCrady, chief of police, and Fred Fitzpatrick, patrolman.

Arrested were Steve Thuransky and Marion Quick. Quick had been previously arrested in Circleville
on charges of operating a game of chance.

Both men posted bonds to return
for hearings at 9 a. m. Wednesday.
City officials declined to reveal the amount of bonds posted.

"We have declared war on the racket," Mayor W. B. Cady said.
"We are starting at the top and expect to work down." The mayor indicated there would be more arrests.

Other central Ohio cities have been conducting campaigns
against the racket in recent weeks.

TAGS RECEIVED,
BIKE LICENSES
READY FOR SALE

Bicycle tags will go on sale at the city building Wednesday. Karl
J. Herrmann, safety director, Tuesday received a shipment of the metal tags from a Columbus firm.

Since most of the bike owners are school pupils the tags will be on sale from 3 to 5 p. m. daily and on Saturday from 8 a. m. to 12 noon and 1 to 5 p. m.

Sale of the tags was originally scheduled to start March 1, but it was delayed when officials had difficulty obtaining tags. Price of the tags and registration is 25 cents.

The owners of bicycles, Mr.
Herrmann explained, can assist those handling the sale by having all information ready when application is made.

Items recorded on the registration card include the owner's name, address, name of bike, serial number, maker, model, color and a description. The owner must sign the registration card.

All owners must take their bicycles to the city building when tags are obtained. The tags must be placed on bicycles at the time of purchase. They will be installed by a person employed to assist in the sale of the tags.

When the tag is obtained a card
will be given to the owner giving traffic regulations established in the bicycle registration ordinance.

—The British steamer Stanwell
was bombed and set afire off Tarragona, south of here, early today
by an unidentified airplane. Dispatches said the vessel did not sink.

A fireman aboard the vessel
named Malhollan was reported killed and several others were wounded including a Danish observer of the anti-piracy patrol.

The news agency Febus reported that two bombs fell in the interior of the Stanwell, exploding in the machine room and in the prow.
Three hours later flames broke out.

DAVEY ASSAILS SPARKS AGAIN FOR CHARGES

Governor Says Proof Of Claims Would Regain Job For Engineer

BIDDING DEFENDED

Political Set-Up Claimed Behind Suit

COLUMBUS, March 15—(UP)—In his third radio speech on the senate graft investigation, Gov. Martin L. Davey last night charged Harry A. Sparks, highway department engineer who was dismissed after testifying that exorbitant prices were paid for road materials, with "being part of the conspiracy of Scripps-Howard, Bricker and Sawyer."

"In spite of these facts, if he can prove his charges, I will take him back and give him a handsome promotion as a reward for having rendered the public a great service, even though it was done through dirty political channels, and from base partisan motives," the governor said.

Noting that Sparks has sued to win reinstatement, the governor criticized what he termed the "partisan intrigue" in the case.

"Before whom will this case come?" he asked. "Before Judge King of Franklin county, cousin of John Bricker, a Republican candidate for governor. Who is the attorney for Sparks? A former assistant attorney general under Mr. Bricker. His law partner was also an assistant attorney general and Mr. Bricker's campaign manager two years ago. It is easy to see the partisan intrigue in this case."

The governor charged that Sparks compared "hot mix" costs with prices paid by the state of California and said conditions there could make possible a wide price variation.

"Why didn't Sparks compare Ohio with the surrounding states?" he said. "Simply because our neighbors states, with one small exception pay more for hot mix road material than Ohio, and this fact would have destroyed his argument."

He insisted that all work is let on a competitive bidding basis in the highway department, explaining that "the state cannot inquire into the reasonableness of the prices that are bid."

SOME DON'TS ABOUT LAWN SEED DISCLOSED

Don't delay. Earlier sown seed gets the start of weeds and hot, dry weather. Lawn seed and tiny grass plants are very hard and are not damaged by frost.

Don't sow the grass seed just before a rain; better to sow it right after a rain when it will stick where it is dropped. Before a rain the dry seed float on the water and are all washed into the low spots.

Cover the seed lightly if possible with humus or soil but do not cover it deeply.

Don't roll the lawn before sowing the seed. It is much better to sow the seed first, then roll the lawn after.

Don't remove the dead grass. If you rake the lawn to rough it up before sowing the lawn seed, then scatter the dead grass back over the lawn after sowing.

Don't expect results from cheap lawn seed. The Kentucky Blue Grass Association was censured several years ago because they burned several million pounds of Kentucky Blue Grass seed. The objection was overcome when it was explained that this seed that was burned was seed that weighed eleven pounds or less per bushel.

Committee Put in Charge Of Cub Pack Conference

With the anticipation of something different from anything ever before offered parents with restless, active, energetic youngsters, Circleville fathers and mothers are looking forward to Wednesday evening when a meeting for parents of prospective Cubs, will be held at the Methodist church. Mrs. Barton Deming, chairman, Mrs. Clark Will, and Mrs. Guy Pettit make up the temporary Pack organization committee which is sponsoring the parents' meeting. Information and explanations concerning Cubbing, the younger boy program of the Boy Scouts of America, will be given at the meeting which is open to the public.

This will be the first attempt locally to establish Cubbing, according to James I. Smith, Jr., chairman of the Pickaway district Boy Scout committee. Although there are over 80,000 Cubs in the United States, there are none at the present time in Pickaway county. In the few years since its scientific inception, Cubbing has become the fastest growing movement for boys in Central Ohio, as well as in the country at large.

Opportunities for fun and action range from backyard camping to kite flying, coaster making, collections, diaries, scrapbooks, playing new games, singing songs and generally being real boys engaged in worthwhile constructive effort. Cubbing not only provides a myriad of practical things to do, but assists fathers and mothers in joining their son in home-centered indoor and outdoor activities.

Although Cubbing combines fun, adventure, and learning in play, the Scout method of "catching" good habits in the give and take of boy activity based upon their promise to be fair, happy and game, it is distinctly different from Scouting. Further explanation and answers to questions and the purpose of tomorrow's meeting.

GOVERNOR PUTS NAME ON FOUR NEW MEASURES

Davey Approves Act To Pay Bills Piled Up During Steel Strikes

TO MOVE OHIO BUREAU

State Vehicles Department To Change Quarters

COLUMBUS, March 15—(UP)—Four appropriation measures and one other bill recently passed by the legislature became law today after Gov. Martin L. Davey affixed his signature to them.

He approved bills: Appropriating $340,000 to the state emergency board for various state departments and divisions and including allowance for $90,000 with which to pay National Guard strike bills.

Appropriating $47,000 to move the bureau of motor vehicles out of the Ohio Hartman Building here which has been condemned.

Reappropriating $109,500 to the welfare department for improvements.

Providing for payment to the federal government of one-half the sums recovered by the state from estates of old age pensioners who die while on the pension rolls.

Arguments about the depression relieve a lot of vocal unemployment.

NBC red network at 8 p. m. (EST) are Judith Anderson, the distinguished stage actress; Robert Wildhack, comedian; and Tommy Riggs and Betty Lou, of the regular Vallee company.

Miss Anderson will star in the dramatic highlight of the evening with a strong supporting cast selected from the movie lots.

Wildhack, who rose to fame as a student of laughs and snores, has a new comedy routine which he will introduce in this edition of the Vallee Hour.

DR. RIGHTMIRE WOULD RETIRE FROM POSITION

Ohio State President Tells Trustees He Is Willing To Leave July 1

ON JOB FOR 12 YEARS

No Action Taken On Move
By Executive

COLUMBUS, March 15—(UP)—Dr. George W. Rightmire, president of Ohio State University since 1926, informed the university board of trustees today that he wishes to retire on July 1, a few months before he becomes 70 years old.

The board in its regular session received the President's request, but took no immediate action on it. His application for retirement did not come as a surprise. It was generally expected that he would take this course before his 70th birthday, Nov. 15.

In his letter to the board, President Rightmire said:

"I have just completed 12 years in the presidency of the university and am approaching the usual age of retirement from active service, accordingly I hereby most respectfully request the privilege of retiring, effective the first day of July, 1938.

"I express deepest appreciation to the members of the board, past and present, during this period, for their unflinching courtesies and cordial and sympathetic relations. I submit this request in a spirit of devotion to the high purposes and the continuous development of the university."

Dr. Rightmire is the sixth Ohio State president, having succeeded Dr. William Oxley Thompson. He was elected to the presidency in 1926 over 40 others who were under consideration. Prior to becoming head of the institution he was on the law faculty and taught American history at the university.

MASS ATTENDED EVERY MARCH 17 FOR 50 SPRINGS

NEW ORLEANS — (UP) — Fifty years ago a blue-eyed 4-year-old Irish girl told her mother she never would miss a St. Patrick's Day mass.

The 13 brothers and sisters of little Loretta Attaway were equally as religious and for many years they would form a parade of their own and join the march to St. Patrick's Church for mass on March 17.

During the past half century, the devout Catholic, now Mrs. Roque Gutierrez, has been the only one of her family able to keep unbroken the vow made to her mother. This March 17 she will round out her 50th consecutive St. Patrick's Day mass at St. Patrick's Church.

When her husband became unemployed 10 years ago, Mrs. Gutierrez made a vow to St. Joseph that she would give 5 cents every week for the poor when her husband found a job. Gutierrez soon was working again and for the past decade his wife has given 5 cents weekly to the poor at St. Vincent de Paul Church.

Bobcat on Downtown Street
EASTLAND, Tex. — (UP)—A bobcat on a downtown street here had citizens wondering if Eastland was out of the "wild west." Alton Reeves, night officer, noticed the young bobcat one night walking toward the downtown section. Reeves killed it with a shotgun.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Even as history is constantly changing, so does romance change and no better proof thus far has reached the screen than "Man-Proof," starring Myrna Loy, Franchot Tone and Rosalind Russell, and presented at the Cliftona Theatre for the last times tonight. "Man-Proof" is the amusing story of a modern marital mixup, with the Misses Loy and Russell ably abetted by Tone and Walter Pidgeon.

AT THE GRAND

Barnacle Bill, the rooster, now has something to crow about, but it happened after he did the crowing.

"Angel's Holiday," Jane Withers' latest hilarity hit for Twentieth Century-Fox opening Tuesday at the Grand Theatre, was being shot in the farmhouse set which forms the background for an important sequence of the picture. Jane herself was in the midst of a long, dramatic scene the one in which she hood-winks a mob of gangsters by hypnotizing them with the graphic telling of a story. James Tinling, the director, was all eyes and ears, and then, in the tensest part of Jane's narrative, Barnacle Bill proceeded to crow.

The scene was left in. Director Tinling thought it perfect atmosphere and even shot a close-up of the rooster crowing. And so Barnacle Bill crashed the hardest gate in the world, which is something to crow about.

Cement bags are usually filled from the bottom.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round
By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
EUROPE FOR 4-POWER PACT
WASHINGTON — The most important (though not necessarily the most sound) European advice reaching the State Department in recent weeks has been from its two Ambassadors in Berlin and Paris, Hugh Wilson and Bill Bullitt. These two men are close friends, agree on most things and to a considerable extent have been steering U. S. policy toward Europe. The advice they have been cabling back is that Europe was headed for a Four Power Agreement—France, Great Britain, Germany and Italy. Bullitt, Ambassador to France, has developed a near-phobia of hatred against Russia since he was Ambassador to that country and has been urging his French friends to desert Russia for a Four Power agreement. Hugh Wilson feels similarly. A Four Power Pact, they have told the State Department, is the early solution of and safeguard for European peace. One important fact they overlooked, however, which was borne out by last week's events in Austria, is that a Four Power Pact will be written only at the dictation of Italy and Germany. These two are writing their own terms. And an all-essential part of those terms is the return of German colonies. According to diplomats who are certainly in a position to know, Mussolini and Hitler have a hard and fast agreement that there will be no Four Power Pact until Britain has returned her colonies to Germany. That is going to be a tough nut for the British to crack. In fact, it is so tough that probably there will be no Four Power Pact.

AMERICAN ANSCHLUSS
IT is easier to realize the meaning of Germany's international policy if we bring the picture to America. Suppose the United States were Germany and Austria were Canada, and this country were imbued with the Nazi "ideology". It would be apparent then to Americans that Canada, though fancying itself independent, was really a part of the United States, so intended by our American God, because the Canadians speak our language, have our culture and are mostly of our race. So President Roosevelt would summon Prime Minister Mackenzie King from Ottawa for a conference at Warm Springs, Ga., and spend three days telling him what to do. Mr. King, under great stress and in fear of military invasion, would finally agree to free Canadians who had been imprisoned for treasonable conspiracy with the United States, to give our government representation in the Canadian cabinet, and make various other concessions. Then Canadian converts to the Washington policy would put American flags in their windows and start parading and orating in Toronto and other cities. But most of the Canadians would grow more and more indignant at such betrayal of their national independence. Finally Premier King in a last desperate effort to save his country would make a radio address telling the world that Canada would continue to be ruler of her own house, and urging all loyal Canadians to stand firm against aggression. Then the blow would fall. Our President would issue orders prepared for such a contingency. American troops and guns would be rushed to the Canadian border. Our army would seize the Peace Bridge at Buffalo and the Ambassador Bridge at Detroit, prepared to march across and seize Toronto and Ottawa. Whereupon, overwhelmingly outnumbered and overpowered, Canada would be forced to yield in order to avoid the destruction of her cities and the massacre of her people. Thus "American ideology", if we indulged in any such Bad Neighbor Policy, would triumph. A pretty picture of civilization, isn't it?

NON-STATISTICAL TALK
The House debate on the tax bill was not entirely confined to statistics. The boys also took time out for some personal observations. During a speech by North Carolina's Bob Doughton, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee which drafted the legislation, Representative Allen Treadway of Massachusetts, ranking Republican member of the committee, broke in with the sharp query, "What is the gentleman aiming at? Where is he headed for?" "Let me finish my statement," pleaded Doughton. "Is the gentleman coming or going?" "He is not standing on his head, anyway," roared back Doughton, "like the gentleman from Massachusetts!"

TVA FIGHT
The news leak from the Comptroller General's office that the Tennessee Valley Authority had spent about $5,000,000 illegally, was generally intercepted as a reflection against Majority Commissioners David Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan and as supporting Chairman Arthur Morgan's charges against them. Actually, however, Chairman Arthur Morgan was the dominating figure in the so-called illegal expenditure, though most common-sense businessmen would have agreed with him. Fact was that in winning its earlier reputation for completing dam projects while P. W. A. work lagged, the T. V. A. cut miles of red tape and that is what the Comptroller General's office is squawking about. Scientists foresee an average age of 90 years, and that will be fine if the old-age pensions hold out.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . Hour by Hour
PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:
Up and about at the regular hour in a well soaked world, hearing here and there expressions of flood fear. There goes Robert Anderson, as regular as clockwork in his north and south journeys over Court street. And here comes Pidge Eveland, the first time I have seen him since his accident, he looking fit once more. Chatted with John Walters, out once more after an illness that took off many a pound. Much busied in the morning helping set the stage for the annual cooking school and being much impressed by the equipment, program and instructors. The event should fill Memorial hall for the three days of its being. Out on the Walnut Creek pike lives Henry Ward. On his farm has just ended in disaster another case of great ego and over expansion. In his barn loft a chicken laid an egg. A pigeon found it and promptly annexed it, then went to work. Stickto-itiveness finally brought results and out hatched a chick. Mrs. Pigeon was a mighty proud "mother." Henry's family heard the chick, investigated and took it to the house for proper care. The pigeon didn't like that at all, seeking rescue by all its feeble means, even trying to get into the house. There's the story up to date and no one knowing whether the bird will die of a broken heart, whether she will win back her "child" or whether she will forget it all and go on about her own affairs. Personally, I think she is entitled to some reward. Imagine the difficulty encountered by that pigeon in keeping that egg covered. In the evening to the C. A. C., being an interested spectator at the amateur boxing matches. One thing about the novices, they certainly sling leather and one always may expect action for about two rounds until the boxers near exhaustion. Saw there many men of affairs and many of none, but everybody appeared to be having a good time. Home at near the midnight hour and just turning to the refrigerator for a snack when the phone jangled and over it came word of Paul Carruthers, the advertising manager, in an automobile wreck that landed him in a hospital. Not seriously hurt, said the message that came to town via police short wave radio. Paul was on his way to Cambridge to attend the funeral of his father, who died Sunday evening. Somewhat upset by the news, so took the dog out for a midnight walk that we both enjoyed, it being the pooch's first venture outdoors at the witching hour.

One More Wedding!
by HELEN WELSHIMER
COPYRIGHT CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

Take the old town by storm and don't forget to come home.
READ THIS FIRST:
Barbara Kingsley, pretty young society editor of the Martinsville Post, has just "covered" another wedding. She is tired of the routine but Peter Baxter, managing editor, cheers her fading spirits. Garry Page, New York newspaper man in town for the wedding, misses his train back and Barbara, at the train to pick up pictures, offers to drive him to the Junction to catch the last train that night. They have dinner and, at the Junction, run into the wedding party, including Barbara's proud cousin, Julia. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:
CHAPTER 3
GARRY PAGE'S answer to Julia Kingsley released a cold little fear that had blown against Barbara's heart. After all, the man was leaving, anyway, and it was ridiculous to be glad that he said: "Don't feel apologetic, Miss Kingsley. You were kindness itself. But I had a train to catch. I think we even said goodbye, didn't we?"
Somebody had a movie camera. He urged the group to move directly under the single lampost. "Stand back, everyone! We want the whole wedding party. Garry, it's great we caught you!" Julia looked at Barbara, eyes blue ice now. "Barbara darling, only the wedding party are being photographed. Better step back." Garry's hand tightened on Barbara's arm, but she released herself and held out her hand. "My exit line. Goodbye—and good luck!" she said. "It was a glorious evening. Thanks a lot. If ever you come to New York—" He was still talking as she hurried away. She was in her car, heading down the road. She wanted to be safely away before the others left. She remembered that they would pass her, because her car was so slow and theirs were so fast, and turned down a side road to wait. Her car was limping more painfully. When she stopped to wait until the wedding party had passed, she couldn't start the motor again. Far down the road the last tail light of the wedding party flashed. She couldn't walk home and she couldn't wait until a car passed. Now the rain was beginning and the green lace dress felt like a rummaged around and found an old gray raincoat. Down the road a light shone. Maybe someone in that house had a car and gasoline, if gasoline was what she needed. She remembered that she had forgotten to have her tank filled that day. The people, however, did not have gasoline. Their own car was not at home. She would call Peter. She could see him, sitting at his desk, a green eye-shade over his eyes, reading proof on tomorrow's editorial page. Or he might be reading a book, or writing on one. He had been trying to whip some chapters into shape for a long time. His big shoulders would be hunched over the desk, and his eyes would be narrowed and keen. "May I use your telephone?" Barbara asked the woman at the farmhouse. It was a few seconds before she heard Peter's voice. The familiar tones were warm and comforting. "Peter?" "Yes, Babbs. What's up?" "I'm out of gas, half a mile from the Junction—"
"Honey, when will you learn that a car can't run on imagination? Hold everything and I'll be right along! Oh, by the way, there's a telegram for you. Just came. I'll bring it." "No, Peter, read it to me now. Please." "As you saw, Nut!" She could hear him tearing open the yellow envelope. "Ready, Barbara?" "Ready!" Peter read: "Vacancy open on children's magazine. Believe you could handle it. Will you consider?" It was signed: Natalie Kendall. Barbara was so quiet when Peter finished reading that he inquired anxiously: "Barbara, are you all right?" "Oh, Peter, I'm grand! I'm fine and splendid and, oh, Peter, isn't it wonderful?" "It is." Even across the miles of distance she caught the unhappiness in his tones. Then he spoke more lightly: "But where do we get another society editor?" "I haven't gone yet," she called happily. Somehow, just the knowledge that she could go if she would, needed to be enjoyed by itself for a moment. Then she remembered swiftly that Peter loved her. He would want her to stay. But she didn't love him—not in that breathless way that one woman loved one man—a way that shut the rest of the world away forever and forever. No, it would be better for Peter if she left. He might not think so now but he would understand later. Aloud she said: "Hurry, Peter. I want to touch the telegram." It would not be a tangible message until she held the yellow paper in her hand. Although the woman in the farmhouse wanted her to wait in the lamp-bright shelter of the comfortable living room, she shook her head. She must be alone for a little while to enjoy her news. Out in the wet darkness she looked at the black sky, and breathed a little prayer. Two good things had come today. A boy with rough light hair and a smile that she would remember for a long time had passed her way. And the job of which she had dreamed had fallen into her lap. Maybe there were reasons that the job would not materialize. She was afraid to hope too far. Maybe the young man was gone forever. But things could happen! That meant much. She was sitting by the side of the road, in the car, when Peter's long roadster swung down to main thoroughfare. She began to press the button which connected with her horn. He caught the signal and turned in. He was rather demanding to-night. "Leave your car, Barbara. We'll send Pike for it tomorrow. I'll take you back. Got everything?" She remembered the pictures which the train had brought down from the city and dug them out of a pocket. Then she felt the rush of cool, rain-spattered wind, as the car went leaping swiftly down the road. It was like Peter that he gave her the telegram and then said nothing more about it. "Hungry?" he asked presently. "No." She laughed. "But you are." All men seemed to be. "Where shall we go?" "I skipped dinner. How about a steak?" "If the world outside should fail you, Barbara," he began, but she stopped him. "Thank you, Peter. I know you would help. But the world can't fail, Peter. It can't!" A letter from Natalie came a few days later. It told more about the opening. "It isn't anything sensational, Babbs dear. But it's an amusing job on a good magazine for children. You like to write stories and the infant response on this book is terrific. Anyway, if you want to try it, there's a job as an associate editor waiting. So toss any doubts of your ability into the refuse can on Center street (I take it, it still sits there) and come on. I have two bedrooms and a terrace and a view of the East river, and the latchstring is out always." The next day an official offer came from the magazine editor. Barbara showed it to Peter. He nodded gravely. "If anything doesn't suit you, Barbara, there is always a desk waiting here." A little lump came into her throat. Suddenly she was afraid to go. It was safe and serene and comfortable in the Post offices. Outside the world was strange and the current swift. Outside was adventure—and somewhere, Garry Page. She wondered if ever she would run into him. That afternoon she received a card from him. He had scrawled only a few words on it. They were gay, friendly, impersonal. He thanked her for taking him to the train. Yet the sun was brighter as it shone across the warped boards of the editorial room floor. That night she told her aunt and cousin that she was leaving. Jealousy burned like two blue lamps in Julia's eyes and her aunt's lecture on gratitude was sweetly bitter. Yet Barbara said nothing. One morning the postman brought a note from Garry, gay and nonsensical, but her typewriter sang as she put the disorderly alphabet in order. Then suddenly it was 10:21, one night, and she and Peter were waiting on the Junction platform where she had stood with Garry and the wedding party a few weeks before. The train whistled as it swung around the bend. Peter grasped her hands. "Goodbye, Barbara. Take the old town by storm and don't forget to come home." "Goodbye—goodbye, Peter." There were so many things she wanted to tell him but she could only stand there, clinging to his hands. Then he grinned and spoke again: "Don't forget that I love you!" "I won't, Peter!" But she did, when the train slid into Grand Central terminal the next morning. She and Natalie were hardly settled at breakfast in a nearby coffee shop until she heard a question slipping out of its locked box: "Natalie, do you know Garry Page?" (To Be Continued)

New Plastic Surgery Remakes Folk's Faces
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
FOUR MEN who believed they could judge character by facial appearance, were gathered in the office of a plastic surgeon—a playwright, a musician, a lawyer and a doctor. The surgeon brought in to them the plaster life masks of some patients, which had been made before operation. "What is this one?" he asked. "A man with a receding chin like that must be a weakling and a failure," said the playwright. "Wrong," said the plastic surgeon. "He is an aggressive industrialist." The next mask is put up. It is the lawyer's turn. "A gangster. The gash in his chin was received in a fight." "Wrong, again," said the plastic surgeon. "It is a minister whose face was cut in an automobile accident." "This one," said the doctor, "with the broken nose and the mashed up ear, is evidently a pugilist." "On the contrary, he is a school teacher with a very sensitive disposition. He received his injuries through a fall in childhood." Examining the casts of the same people after plastic surgery had done its work, the same jury acknowledged that they would have come to different conclusions. Molds Faces
The plastic surgeon of today is able not only to correct deformities, but also to mold faces according to his idea of the spiritual needs of the owner. Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column. The work of a plastic surgeon has been well described for the laity in a book called "New Faces, New Futures—Rebuilding Character With Plastic Surgery," by Maxwell Maltz. The work of these special surgeons in remodeling noses is pretty well known, but you may not realize how important it is for some people. Jimmy Durante is about the only actor who capitalizes on his nose. A radio singer was offered a Hollywood contract on condition that he would first have his nose rebuilt. He did, with the result that his income increased fourfold and is now larger than that of the president of the United States. What is not known is the number of deformed ears that are reconstructed—especially protruding ears. Thomas Mann, noted present-day author, sold fire insurance before he won the Nobel prize for literature.

Monday Club Conducts
Annual Social Session

Penn Discusses Interesting
Topic

Spring was forecast in the unusual and attractive decorations of St. Philip's parish house, Monday evening, when 83 members and guests gathered for the annual social session of the Monday club. Potter plants in the window recesses made a pleasing background for the tables which were decorated in an Easter theme. Brilliantly-colored eggs nested in artificial grass strewn the length of the table cloths. The light of many green tapers in crystal holders completed the decorations.

Following the dinner served at 6:30 o'clock, a pleasing and distinctive program was presented. Mrs. Halse Hays, chairman of the program committee for the occasion, introduced David Penn, radio news broadcaster for station WOOL, Columbus. Mr. Penn was for many years a foreign news correspondent in the East and in Australia, where he wrote stories for the Melbourne Herald. For a year he was a member of the British Geographic Expedition to New Guinea. His radio work has been in stations in Los Angeles, Dayton and Columbus.

Mr. Penn chose for his topic, "News Broadcasting," tracing from very early times man's remarkable trait of utter inquisitiveness, a trait that is directly responsible for the progress of the world, a trait that has led man every step of his way along the path of civilization. Some unidentified Chaldean about 7,000 years ago must have recognized man's curiosity and inscribed man's earliest records on tablets of clay, so Mr. Penn related. He continued with the thought that this early recorder must have known that these tablets would last through the ages and satisfy man's curiosity thousands of years later. He told how the Egyptians, 3,000 years later wrote on papyrus, and how the Chinese had begun experimenting with paper made from wood pulp.

In continuation he stated that about the time Carist was born the Chinese were actually printing on that paper with blocks carved from wood. With the dawn of the 20th century the newspaper had become the greatest medium of current information the world had ever seen. With the advent of the World War, great news services were in operation. Mr. Penn concluded his talk with interesting details of the appearance of radio news reports.

For the second part of the program, Philip Moore gave an interesting and instructive talk on marionettes, their origin and mechanism. The puppets used by Mr. Moore are designed and made by him. He also writes the script for his plays. The plays presented Monday evening were two fairy stories, "Hans and Gretel" and "The Enchanted Well," and another feature, "A Variety Show."

Those in charge of the enjoyable evening were Mrs. Hays, chairman of the program committee, assisted by Miss Margaret Dunlap, Mrs. Paul Johnson, Mrs. G. L. Hitler and Miss Margaret Mattinson. Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker was chairman of the social committee and

Style Whimsies

Chiffon jackets are worn with chiffon frocks for evening, but they are so tucked and ruffled, gathered or trimmed with crocheted bands that they are almost unrecognizable. They add warmth as well as style to a dress.

There are some open-neck dress lines, but most of them are built up to the throat and many have tiny standing collars. In the lower line, a squared effect is most used.

A new and most original compact has a brush edge to dust the spilled powder from your dress after the shine is removed from your nose.

Off whites, like oatmeal and string colors, are popular for late spring and summer, and natural is also a favorite.

Two new rose shades—gumdrop and hedge rose.

TODAY'S RECIPES

SPICED BAKED HAM—Have ham cut one and one-half to two inches thick, stick with 25 whole cloves. Make a sauce of one-half cup vinegar and one-half cup water, two teaspoons mustard and one-fourth cup brown sugar. Bake slowly for two hours, basting frequently.

APPLE BETTY—Alternate layers of bread crumbs and chopped apples in a well-buttered dish, sprinkle each layer with cinnamon and brown sugar. Before putting on top layer of crumbs, pour in one-fourth cup boiling water with a little butter (one teaspoon). Bake half an hour covered and serve with hard sauce.

American white daisies or Marguerites are being shown in Paris jewelry shops with their petals of gold and hearts of rhinestones.

"There Was No Question What Our Next Refrigerator Would Be"

"We Chose GAS Refrigeration"
The wide acceptance of a refrigerator that is silent and freezes without any moving parts to wear out has prompted thousands of families to say, "Our next refrigerator will be a gas refrigerator." The beautiful 1938 Servel Electrolux has clinched this decision for a fast increasing number of families who are buying this year.
Gas refrigeration saves on your nerves because it is silent. It saves on your budget because it operates for less than two cents a day on high grade gas, and there are no moving parts in the freezing system to wear out.
Visit The Gas Company or request that our representative call at your home to tell you more about the refrigerator you hear so much about — but never hear. Easy payments amount to only a few cents a day.
The Gas Company
GAS DOESN'T COST... IT PAYS!
Mrs. Lucy Hough, 486 E. 2nd St., Chillicothe, Ohio, says—
"Owned gas refrigerator two years and is very satisfactory. Has never cost over fifty-five cents a month to operate. Like the absence of noise."
Nellie G. Spitzer, 233 W. Hardin St., Findlay, Ohio, says—
"To say I'm pleased with my Electrolux is putting it mildly. Costs 1/4 less than operating previous method of refrigeration. Fast freezing and silence are appreciated."

Kitchen Planned To Ease Duties Of Housewives

Planning kitchens to lighten the burden of modern homemakers has been the objective of architects the last decade. Previous to this time, most kitchens were constructed without regard to accessibility, lighting, arrangement of appliances or any one of the other more important details that make today's kitchens culinary laboratories of utmost efficiency.

The most important phase of modern kitchen planning is the close relationship of the various work centers plus the selection of equipment and materials to develop these centers into a unified and balanced room.

Since the modern kitchen is composed of a number of parts carefully planned to fit together, accepted practice today builds the kitchen around three main centers, namely the sink, the range and the refrigerator, with the sink placed in a position between the latter two appliances. The doors, windows, light and ventilation of the kitchen must be considered in relation to these equipment work centers.

Size Considered
Generally, when purchasing materials to be used in the kitchen, the planning engineer must consider the size of the room. In building a new home, the size should depend upon the amount of cooking to be done and the number of people who are to work in it. Recently, there has been a greater trend to larger kitchens which give one a sense of roominess.

After the size and shape of the kitchen has been decided the location of doors, windows, plumbing, etc., must be considered in their relation to the size of the appointments to be used. This done, work centers are then placed so as to take advantage of all available space by including as many efficient groupings as possible. For instance, since the refrigerator, range and sink constitute the three main centers, they should be arranged so as to take advantage of the room plan and then brought together by means of storage cabinets and work-tops.

Thousands of other suggestions for planning modern kitchens are available without obligation to those who are interested by calling the home service representative of The Gas Company in this community.

KINGSTON

Basketball Team Feted

The boys of the Kingston high school basketball team were feted to a chicken dinner at the "Dinner Bell" tea room Friday evening by George Borders and Harry W. Sims. The class colors, blue and gold, predominated and the table contained the trophies they had been awarded. Those enjoying this affair were Donald Buckwalter, James Stewart, Ralph Minner, Jimmy Sims, Royal Triplett, Johnnie Jordan, Charles Smith, Richard Beavers, Goldthrift Weaver, Tom Ellis, Frank Miller, Manager Neil Vaughn, Coach George Merriken, Mr. Borders and Mr. Sims. After the dinner the boys motored to Chillicothe and attended the Sherman theatre.

Church Services

A very impressive baptism service was held in the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning by the pastor, Rev. Frank J. Baterson. A note of indebtedness for $675 of long standing was raised in a campaign from January 15, to March 5. This note was burned at this service and was held in the hand of Mrs. Emma Miller one of the oldest members and supervised by W. R. Sheridan. This is the first time the church has been out of debt for a period of years. Those that were baptised were Richard Lemley, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lemley and Helen Bower who makes her home with Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Noble, Robert Edward Gower, Ada May Polen, Marguerite Kelley, Esther and Betty Lou Arledge, Frances Haynes, Nancy and Martha Freshour, Harriett Ann Roby and Bernice and Ruth Carper.

Reese Siberell will act as agent for the Ohio-Midland Light and Power company in Orcie Gibson's place who recently resigned and will move his family to the country about the first of April.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller were Sunday guests of Mrs. Miller's father, Henry Churches at Laurelville.

Mrs. Arthur Vorhees was returned to her home in Adelphi Saturday morning from the White Cross hospital in Columbus, in the Shannon-Hill ambulance.

Mr. and Mrs. William McPherson, W. T. Anderson, Miss Adah Machir and Miss Laura Bush were Saturday afternoon visitors in Columbus.

Thursday K. of P. lodge members will hold a covered dish supper in the old K. of P. hall in Adelphi. Every member is invited to attend.

Dr. R. E. Lightner was confined in his home two days last week with influenza.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Snyder, Mrs. Lawrence Betz and Mrs. Harry W. Sims attended the funeral service for Mrs. Harry Carpenter at the Mader funeral home in Circleville, Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Carpenter was buried at Darbyville.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Beavers and son of London, Mrs. Charles Bailey of near Plain City, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Bond.

Miss Gladys Beavers of Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Ireton of New Charleston, were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Beavers. Mrs. Beavers has been seriously ill but is improved at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Snyder and son of Clarksburg, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Snyder's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Betz and family.

"School Beautification Project"

The Kingston Garden club will give a "Benefit Bingo" party at the high school auditorium on Thursday evening, March 17, at 7:30. There will be many prizes and a door prize. Refreshments sold during the evening. All proceeds will go for the beautification of the grounds of the new school building.

DEATH OF BRIDE MAY RESULT IN MORE ARRESTS

DELAVAN, Ill., March 15—(UP)—The puzzling death of Mrs. Betty Crabb, 19, thrice-wed bride who was found shot to death two weeks ago in the home of her wealthy parents-in-law, has not been solved completely despite her young husband's confession of the killing, State's Attorney R. L. Russell said today.

He hinted strongly that further arrests may be forthcoming.

The girl's husband, James, 21, son of the village banker, Willis W. Crabb, was arrested Saturday on a warrant charging murder, immediately after he completed his testimony before a coroner's jury. Nine hours later he admitted the slaying but said it was accidental.

The vivacious brunette, a bride of five weeks, died from a bullet wound over her right breast. Her body was found in her bedroom early on the morning of March 1 after she had attended a wedding party with her husband.

State criminologists were called in when local authorities failed to reconcile mysterious aspects of the case with a clear cut verdict of suicide or accidental death.

Buttons have gone completely gay. There are the Mother Goose buttons with the old woman who lived in a shoe, Jack and the Beanstalk, and all the rest. One of Schiaparelli's new costumes has shiny lion buttons fastening the coat, and there are many other designs.

Giving Country Back to Indians
Is Worth While Experiment

A stately pine falls under the axes and saws of the tribesmen.

Indians use modern machinery and modern forestry practices on their valuable timber tracts.

The sawmill of the Menominee Indian tribe on the reservation at Neopit, Wis., the only enterprise of its kind in America, last year produced a profit of $170,000 under tribal management.

By JOHN W. WYNGAARD
Central Press Correspondent

SHAWANGO, Wis. Mar. 15—The next time that someone uses that favorite quip about giving the country back to the Indians, you may reply with the example of the Menominees of Wisconsin to prove that there may be something in the idea.

For up here in northern Wisconsin, in the center of what was once a vast, rich timber area of millions of acres as pictured in the lumbering saga of Wisconsin's Edna Ferber, the government has given a little piece of the country back to the Indians, and with results which demonstrate they are perfectly capable of handling it.

Collier Credited

The "Great White Father" of the Menominee tribe in Washington, and particularly John Collier, who since becoming United States commissioner of Indian affairs in 1933 has stressed home rule, has experimented in allowing the Indians on their reservation near here to manage their own economic affairs.

The Indians have responded and shown a profit in an enterprise in which the federal government's managers for more than 20 years showed losses.

The Menominees on their 320,000-acre reservation, embracing a dozen townships, have one of the largest and most valuable virgin timber stands in Wisconsin and what is reputed to be the finest white pine tract on the North America continent. In 1908 the department of interior built a sawmill on the reservation to harvest the timber for the dual purpose of giving employment to the tribesmen and to replenish the tribal fund.

The federal government, however, retained virtually complete control of the valuable forest acres and the lumbering project. Indians protested at forestry practices of the federal representatives, but without avail. Then in 1931 a measure of autonomy was allowed, and in 1933 Commissioner

Collier agreed to local representative government through the tribal council and advisory board, and chose an educated native tribesman, Ralph Fredenburg, superintendent of the reservation.

Indians Get Jobs

Other Indians became foremen, superintendents, sealers and forest rangers in the tribal lumber industry. Tribal members were given the logging jobs on a contract basis. The percentage of Indians employed at the sawmills, the only sawmills owned and operated by Indians in America increased from 36 per cent in 1930 under federal management to more than 70 per cent at the present time.

But best of all, according to Aloysius M. Dodge, native chairman of the reservation advisory board, the last year showed a substantial profit, the first in the history of the tribe's lumber business. Operations in 1937 produced a profit of $170,000, while payments from stumpage contracts to tribesmen will probably amount to $100,000 more.

Self-Supporting

The profit was the first realized since establishment of the mills in 1908, says Dodge. "The sawmill, the tribe's only source of revenue, was a losing enterprise under the old management. The income now permits the tribe to be one of the few in the country which are self-supporting. We are very grateful to Commissioner Collier for his liberal policies."

Wisconsin's Menominees—there are still about 2,000 of the original 2,500—are regarded as the ablest and most prosperous of the 12,000 descendants in Wisconsin of the primitive savages who greeted Voyageur Jean Nicolet when he disembarked at Green Bay three centuries ago.

They represent a curious mixture of the new and the old, the ancient patriarchs who still prefer a blanket around their shoulders, and the collegiate youth in slacks and sport jacket. But all of them are satisfied at last that they are running their own affairs, and proud because they are showing Uncle Sam a successful job.

"The advisory board is the ruling body of the tribe," Superintendent Fredenburg explains for his citizens. "The ten men on the board are elected from the tribe by the council, which consists of all tribal adults."

Fredenburg, a college trained member of the tribe, is one of three Indian reservation superintendents in the country. Popular with his fellows, he has fought for many years what the tribe feels was unwise management by the distant interior department in Washington.

Under his direction, and with the help of the state department of agriculture and E. L. Chambers, state entomologist, tribesmen have taken great care to protect their valuable trees from the ravages of blister rust which has attacked even the state and federal preserves in northern Wisconsin. State agricultural department agents recruit willing Indian school boys from the four reservation schools each spring to assist with eradication work.

MICHIGAN G.O.P. EYES 3 IN RACE FOR GOVERNOR

Fitzgerald, Toy and Fitch Are Rivals in State's Earliest Campaign

FRANK MURPHY TO RUN

Democrat's Labor Policies Hit By Opponents

LANSING, Mich., March 15—(UP)—Michigan Republicans are in the midst of a fight between a former governor and an ex-attorney general for the right to oppose Gov. Frank Murphy's "Little New Deal" next November.

The conflict for control of the party in Michigan, upset by the Roosevelt landslide of 1932 and 1936, started the earliest political campaign in the state's history.

Former Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, small town farmer, banker and perennial holder of public office, was the first to announce he was going to seek the office he lost to Murphy in 1936 after leading a Republican rout of Democrats in the 1934 "off year" state election. He made his announcement in December.

Toy Militant Prosecutor

Six weeks later Harry S. Toy, militant prosecutor from Detroit, who was appointed to the Supreme Court of Michigan in 1935, announced he would oppose the former governor in the Republican primary campaign.

Entrance of Roscoe Conkling Fitch, former newspaper man of Ludington, who opposed Fitzgerald in the 1936 primary, into the 1938 race indicates other candidates may be expected.

All have assailed the labor policies of Murphy, mediator of the prolonged sit-down strikes in the automobile industry last year. The red-haired, bachelor governor, who gave up his high commissionership to the Philippines to return and campaign for President Roosevelt in Michigan, has not formerly entered the campaign but he has told friends he expects to seek re-election.

Leaders Urge Caution

Cautious party leaders have warned all factions against too bitter a primary fight. They fear it might play into Murphy's hands. The primary election is Sept. 13.

Toy, Fitzgerald and Murphy are seasoned campaigners. They are corners of ringing phrases and stinging invectives.

There is a similarity in the careers of the men.

Fitzgerald, at 53, has been on the public payroll the longest. He started as a senate committee clerk in 1913, was business manager of the state highway department 10 years later, and served two terms as secretary of state before being elected governor in 1934. During the World War he was secretary of the Michigan federal food commission.

Murphy, who won a 892,774 to 843,855 vote victory over Fitzgerald in 1936 while Mr. Roosevelt polled 1,016,794 votes in Michigan to Alfred M. Landon's 699,900 vote majority. Toy is 46.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

One Cow Produces Milk Enough for 50 Children

COLUMBUS, March 15—Ray Van Schoyck, a member of the Madison-Darby herd improvement association owns one cow that produced enough milk in a month to supply 50 children with more than a quart a day, a total of 2,164 pounds of milk containing 134 pounds of butterfat, according to Ivan McKellip, specialist in animal husbandry, Ohio State University.

The Van Schoyck cow obtained her position of first place in the 47 Ohio associations by virtue of her record for butterfat, as other cows produced more milk during the month. L. W. Nisbet, Butler association, is owner of the second place cow in butterfat production, 111.1 pounds; but this cow produced more than a ton and one-half of milk.

Four other cows produced more than three pounds of butterfat daily during the month. The owners, in the order in which their cows ranked, are M. and F. Delinger, Union association; E. D. Kleckner, Sandusky-Ottawa association; Garver brothers, Medina No. 1 association, and W. B. Barr and son, Stark No. 1 association. Thirty-nine additional cows produced more than 52 pounds of butterfat in the 31 days under test.

J. L. Boerger and son, Union association, had the best average record of butterfat production in the herds containing from 5 to 15 cows. The Boerger herd produced an average of 63.2 pounds of butterfat and 1,903 pounds of milk. Lester F. Weck, Paulding association, and W. L. Satterwaite, Columbiana-Mahoning association, had the next ranking herds in the same herd classification.

Garver brothers, Medina association, turned in the best record for the month in the large herd classification, with an average of 53.2

pounds of butterfat, and 1,007 pounds of milk. Mrs. George Eustis, Butler association, and A. J. Knoll, Huron Valley association, own the second and third place herds containing 15 or more cows.

Mr. McKellip says that reports from the testers in Ohio associations show that dairymen are buying considerable new equipment and that the installation of electricity in Ohio barns is now an everyday occurrence. Association members culled 205 low producers from their herds and purchased 78 cows as replacements.

HAWAII URGED TO END TAXES BY LOTTERIES

Sponsor Seeks Signatures To Petition 1939 Legislature

SCOT BACKS PROGRAM

Four Year Effort Toward Plan Nears Climax

HONOLULU, March 15 — (UP)—"Take a chance and pay no taxes" may be governmental advice in Hawaii if the next territorial legislature adopts the idea advanced by Harry Edward Lauder, Hilo resident.

A keen-eyed, graying Scot, Lauder has worked four years to perfect a plan for a public lottery and sweepstakes.

When he started working on the idea he was in Brawley, Cal. He describes himself as "a wanderer and soldier of fortune." Now 41, he was on the Mexican border when Pancho Villa raided Columbus, N. M., and has served with the Texas Rangers, the Los Angeles police, the Calexico, Cal., police, and was attached to the U. S. Marshal's office in Juneau, Alaska.

He had ambitious hopes that he could see his lottery and sweepstakes plan adopted in the United States as a national health benefit scheme. Unable to obtain endorsement of that suggestion, he developed a "baby compensation plan," where lottery and sweepstakes receipts were to be used to pay healthy parents-to-be $150, with $350 paid the mother and father after birth of each child.

He came to Hawaii in 1936, and since that time has advocated a territorial sweepstakes and lottery. At first he suggested that proceeds be used for the rehabilitation and assistance of Polynesian islanders only, with only those persons whose blood is one-fourth or more of Polynesian extraction eligible for benefits. He estimated that after two years' operation of the lottery and sweepstakes plan, with 75 percent of the revenues returning to purchasers in the form of prizes, the territory would have a fund of $30,000,000.

Now Lauder has altered his suggestion to a plan whereby all receipts of lottery and sweepstakes ticket sales would be used for payment of prizes and general territorial administrative expenses.

"When this money was turned over to the treasury of the territory, it would then be distributed for use where it was needed most," he said. "As the territory progressed with the returns from the lottery and drawing, there could begin at the same time a discontinuance of taxes here and there. Taxes paid by persons of smallest earning power could be abolished first, until the taxes of even the very richest persons would be reduced."

Lauder does not propose legalization of horse racing in Hawaii. He suggests that a public drawing could be held on horse races anywhere in the world.

Lauder now is engaged in efforts to present a large number of signed petitions to the 1939 session of the territorial legislature, thus winning consideration of his proposal.

DRINKING 'KEY' DEVELOPED FOR DRIVERS' TESTS

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UP)—Five one-ounce "shots" of 100-proof whisky taken within a short time will make the average person incapable of driving an automobile, according to Dr. Walter W. Jetter, a member of the Buffalo City Hospital staff.

Dr. Jetter has worked out a "key" to drunkenness which may prove a valuable weapon to law forces in getting convictions against drivers.

Experiments involving chemical analysis of the blood were conducted over a three-year period by the young doctor and as a result he developed a test which will not only demonstrate the presence of alcohol in the blood but determine the amount as well.

During the three years of scientific study, Dr. Jetter tried his test on 1,200 persons.

The occasional drinker, the experiments show, will become intoxicated at a much lower concentration of alcohol than will the chronic alcoholic. Virtually anyone not a chronic alcoholic will be intoxicated after drinking five ounces of 100-proof whisky within a 40-minute period, Dr. Jetter said.

BREEDERS TO MEET

Annual meeting of the Ohio Guernsey Breeders' Assn. will be held in the Methodist church, Wooster, on Friday, March 18, beginning at 10:30 a. m., Archie M. Two addresses are scheduled on the afternoon session.

CARE OF LAMBS
ASSURES GOOD
MARKET RETURN

Liberal Supply Of Milk
For Ewe Guaranteed By Good Feeding

EXPERT PROVIDES AID

Top Prices May Be Gained
For Good Animals

Ohio sheepmen who come home from the early markets with top prices for their lambs do not get that way by carrying four-leaf clovers or rabbits' feet but by careful early management of the lambs, according to L. K. Bear, specialist in animal husbandry at Ohio State university.

Many farmers give the lambs a running start by having the ewes gaining in flesh and in vigorous condition before lambing but it is too late now to take those measures on most Ohio farms. Flock owners, however, can take extra pains in feeding the ewes to make sure that all lambs get a liberal supply of milk.

Mr. Bear claims that it is impossible to overcome the effects of neglecting to give the lambs a good start before they are weaned. The ewes' grain rations should be replaced by a bran mash or a mash made of bran and rolled oats for the first few days after lambing but they should receive plenty of hay.

The grain feed should then be gradually increased until each ewe is getting from three-fourths to one-half pounds daily of a mixture of five parts corn, three parts oats, two parts bran, and one part linseed cake or other protein supplement. Unless legume hay is fed, finely ground limestone mixed with equal part of salt or mixed at the rate of one pound of limestone to 10 pounds of protein supplement should be supplied.

Creep Suggested

Lambs usually will start eating grain and hay when they are two or three weeks old so a creep should be provided where they have access to grain and leafy hay. Creeps made with vertical bars work best, and rollers can be used for bars to avoid injury to lambs or to the fleece of ewes which try to force their way into the creep.

Coarse cracked corn and bran are a good mixture to tempt lambs to learn to feed in the creep. Then, in a few days the mixture should be changed to two parts cracked corn, two parts crushed oats, one part bran, and one part pea-sized oil cake. From six weeks old until weaning time, whole grains mixed three parts corn, five parts oats, one part bran, and one part either linseed or cottonseed cake should be kept in the creep. Thrifty lambs running with heavily milking ewes sometimes die when the ewes are first turned on pasture. These losses can be reduced if the protein supplement in the ewes' ration is removed for a short time before they are turned out or the complete grain ration can be eliminated for a day or two before the ewes are placed on pasture.

Buck lambs and long-tailed lambs cannot be sold for top prices. Most Ohio farmers no longer send lambs to market under such handicaps but there are always a few flock owners who forget this marketing fact. A more common failure is to delay treating lambs for parasites. The control treatment should be given after the lambs have been on pasture three or four weeks regardless of their age.

GROWERS FAVOR
MARKET QUOTAS
FOR TWO CROPS

WASHINGTON, March 15 — (UP)—Cotton and tobacco growers voted overwhelmingly in favor of marketing quotas in the first public test of the administration's new farm program, virtually complete returns from Saturday's referendum disclosed today.

Tabulations by Agricultural Adjustment administration officials showed that 92.5 percent of cotton growers, 86 percent of flue-cured tobacco growers and 81 percent of dark tobacco growers voted in favor of marketing restrictions. "We consider the vote an overwhelming endorsement of the new farm program," Agricultural Adjustment Administrator H. R. Tolley said. "We are very pleased with the result."

Approximately 1,750,000 farmers—about 75 percent of all cotton and tobacco growers—voted in the referendum in 19 states.

And we have agreed to do this very thing when the out of doors is a bit more pleasant than now. And for fear that we have not told you about it, the state inspector rated the Ashville plant as A-1 of all the village plants in the state. Sure, this is worth bragging about.

Personal Notes

Mrs. Sally Fridley is the guest this week of Mrs. Lou Vause and daughter at Gray Station. "Fred Hines' Band" was a term frequently used in the whole Ashville Community reaching far out, and now that Fred has moved with his family back to the old home town, why not have that "Fred Hines' Band" again? You know that when that Northwest Territory Caravan marches through town, a 40-piece band would come in very handy as a part of the welcome and in their entertainment. And Memorial Day and Fourth of July are not far around the corner. So let's get some one at it and have the good band we can and should have.

PRISON HELPFUL

SAN QUENTIN, Cal. (UP) — Bernard J. "Pat" Malone, former Oakland milkman, recently released from San Quentin prison, expects to make his living as a composer of popular songs.

Six years in prison on a robbery charge gave him the time and the opportunity to develop a talent that was just beginning to appear at the time of his conviction.

After his regular duties in San Quentin were performed, including that of learning the trade of a dental apprentice, Malone put in his entire time writing lyrics and composing melodies. The writing of lyrics is easy for him and the creation of tunes almost as easy, except that he has need of an assistant to transcribe them in musical notes, as he does not know a note of music.

During his six years in San Quentin, Malone constantly had the assistance of Henry Cowell, a musician serving a term on a morals charge, as well as that of Frederick Paul, editor of the Sports News, published in the prison, and Don Lucas. The two latter usually served as his "musical amanuenses."

Malone has had all of his prison compositions copyrighted. In addition to his songs, he has composed a number of fox trots and waltzes.

Among the copyrighted songs that he has written are:

"Wally Blue"—inspired when the blue chosen by the Duchess of Windsor for her trousseau became the fad in this country, "Deliver Me From You," "Any Irish Song," "Bring Back Love Alive," "I'm Tetched in the Haid 'Bout You," "When Stars Kiss My Hill Top Heaven," and "When Your Sugar Salts You Down."

OVERSEA ROAD SOON TO LINK FLORIDA KEYS

Key West and Mainland
Will Be Joined By
Concrete Ribbon

1935 HURRICANE AIDS

P.W.A. Provided Money
After Disaster

KEY WEST, Fla., March 15—(UP)—A highway stretching through the picturesque Florida Keys, running out to sea and connecting this island city with the United States mainland, is nearing completion. Contractors announced the gigantic task of converting 40 miles of abandoned railroad viaducts and roadway into a modern highway would be completed in March or early April. They expect to open the road to public use immediately after it is finished.

Their final efforts are concentrated on laying a roadbed over an 18-mile ferry gap, the final link in a highway made possible through a tragic hurricane and a $3,600,000 PWA loan.

It was the Labor Day Hurricane of 1935, which destroyed the late Henry M. Flagler's $25,000,000 railroad line to Key West and interrupted rehabilitation efforts of the Federal government here, that prompted the PWA loan to the overseas road and toll bridge district for construction of the highway.

Rail Line Abandoned

The Interstate Commerce Commission granted the Florida East Coast railroad permission to abandon the 40 miles of viaducts, bridges and right of way along which the hurricane had twisted rails beyond feasible repair. These were sold to the road and toll bridge district for $640,000.

The overseas highway is laid over these former railroad bridges and keys roadway which spanned the water gaps between here and the Florida mainland and crossed the tiny islands.

Where concrete arches ranging from 13 to 15 feet wide existed on the former railroad bridges, water-proofed steel cross beams have been secured into slots in the walls. On these beams the concrete slabs for the 20-foot roadway have been laid.

An integral part of the overseas highway is the 40-mile stretch which formerly was traversed by ferry. The highway begins officially 7 miles southeast of Florida City, southernmost United States mainland city, where a two-mile bridge connects the mainland with Key Largo.

Roads Built for 3 Years

Between 1923 and 1926, 61 miles of highway were constructed through the keys and over short water gaps from Florida City to the ferry landing at Lower Matecumbe Key.

The 40-mile link of highway now nearing completion would connect the "jumping off place" at lower Matecumbe with the ferry landing at Big Pine key. It requires less than an hour to drive the remaining 39 miles from Big Pine key to Key West.

The combined cost of the complete overseas highway computed from 1923 to the present date, has been set at $7,400,000. Engineers point out that a saving of $7,000,000 was made possible through purchase of the railroad right-of-way for $640,000.

The completed highway may bring to this island city of Key West a boom which failed to materialize when Flagler completed his railroad in 1912. At that time, the city was the third largest in population in the state and considered the world's leading cigar manufacturing center.

City Slowly Slumped

In two decades, however, its population dropped from 30,000 to 8,000. Its cigar industry waned and ships ceased to make the city a port of call.

In 1935, the Federal government began a $1,000,000 rehabilitation project here in an effort to transform the onetime industrial center into a resort city. The 1935 hurricane, which destroyed the railroad and severed the only convenient means of transportation between here and the mainland, apparently had doomed the city from regaining the prestige it once knew. The subsequent purchase of the railroad right-of-way, however, has re-opened the possibility of developing this "city in the sea" into the resort center envisioned by the Federal government.

CRAFTSMEN USE RAW MINE GOLD

DEADWOOD, S. D. (UP)—Origin of the distinctive grape and leaf design of Black Hills gold jewelry is unknown, although it has followed every gold rush since the '49ers plowed across the dim trails to California, according to E. P. Lampinen, of Deadwood.

When the boom died in California, the jewelers followed the miners to Cripple Creek, Colo., to Idaho, Montana, and finally to the Black Hills, last stand of fresh, raw gold. They used the same design in each new gold camp, partly because it was the only one they knew and partly because it adapted itself so well to the various kinds of gold.

Old Legend Recalled

There is a legend that the first grape leaf jewelry was made by a hungry young jeweler who fell asleep under the trees, wondering how he could create a new design that would become popular. When he awakened he lay looking at the grapes and leaves in the trees overhead, and noted how the vine twined about the trees. There was his new design, Lampinen says the legend goes.

Each piece of jewelry is hand made and is manufactured from Black Hills placer gold, brought to the local shops by placer miners, working in Keystone, Mystic,

French Creek, Two Bit Gulch, Tinton, Potato Creek, Whitewood Creek and other places.

The prospectors are paid the regular monthly quotation price.

Refining Lengthy Process

Lengthy process is involved in refining the raw gold from the placer flakes and nuggets to 24 carat gold. If left alone, nature does a good deal of the work, Lampinen says. The gold is melted, treated with acid to separate it from other metals, going through 10 steps to obtain the 24 carat gold, soft and pliable, with the rich color which distinguishes the Black Hills gold from all other.

It is alloyed to obtain the three colors, red, green and yellow. The leaves and grapes are cut with steel discs. The gold wire is rolled through steel rolls to a size where

PRISONS SCORED ON EASY LABOR

FRESNO, Cal. (UP)—Increased physical labor for jail and prison inmates as a corrective measure in California penal institutions was recommended by District Attorney Earl Warren of Alameda county at a Peace officers Association meeting here.

"California's penal system is a failure as far as the rehabilitation of criminals is concerned," Warren told assembled officers.

"Most of our prisoners spend their time either in solitude or in talk and few are rehabilitated," Warren said. "They come out more anti-social, knowing more about crime than when they went in and are more of a problem to police and law enforcement agencies."

The 6,000 inmates in San Quentin prison do not have enough work to make them physically or mentally tired, he said.

Warren suggested employment of prisoners in road building projects and furniture manufacture for public buildings.

Warren pointed out that organized kidnapping has practically been abolished in the United States and that organized crime of other types has been largely abolished. Gang murders have been greatly reduced by legislation of a helpful nature and a closer working between law enforcement agencies, he added.

District Attorney Dan F. Conway defended the state parole system and said records show that only a few ex-convicts get into difficulties while on parole. Conway said incorrigible prisoners should be segregated.

Snails Invade Capital

CANBERRA (UP)—An army of snails has invaded Canberra, Australia's capital, known as the "garden city." The beautiful public and private gardens were overrun with them.

Philadelphia was the seat of the U. S. federal government from 1790 to 1800.

CANADA'S LOANS TAKEN AT HOME

OTTAWA (UP)—During the first decade of the present century approximately $2,270,000,000 was spent for the utilization and exploitation of Canada's natural resources, according to the brief recently submitted to the Dominion-Provincial Relations Commission by the Investment Dealers' Association.

In the first 12 years of this century economic activity was unfolding at a rate unparalleled in any other country. To develop primary production $465,000,000 was spent in that time. Of the remaining $2,270,000,000 expended $700,000,000 went for railways, $355,000,000 for working capital, and $600,000 for municipal improvement.

According to the brief, Great Britain provided nearly $1,000,000,000 in 1902 and more than $2,000,000,000 by 1914. By 1936 the United States had replaced Great Britain as the primary source of foreign capital. Canada, however, became investment conscious during the World War and domestic loans exceeded $700,000,000 in 1915 and 1919.

Of the total new financing for war and other purposes from 1914 to 1919, amounting to more than $3,322,000,000, Canadians lent approximately $2,229,000,000. Whereas at the start of the war 30,000 owned bonds in Canada, bondholders in the Dominion totalled more than a million by 1918.

ALL-STAR FEATURES ON FOOD INSTITUTE'S 3-DAY PROGRAM

"Get Acquainted Day"

1st
Day

An interesting program designed to acquaint the audience with the important phases of the Institute including cooperating merchants, the all-gas kitchen and the food lecturers in charge of the program.

"On Trial"

2nd
Day

A highly entertaining drama of the kitchen involving the case of the plaintiff (the refrigerator) and the defendant (the range) with the final decision resting with the audience as the jury.

"Art Enters The Kitchen"

3rd
Day

The modern kitchen becomes a "studio"—the food lecturer an "artist"—to prepare food as "pretty as a picture." You'll be surprised how similar the work of the homemaker and the artist can be.

Dr. Roy A. Burkhart, Home Counselor

Noted Lecturer

A feature of the third day's program will be a talk by Dr. Roy A. Burkhart, noted lecturer and author of Columbus. He will discuss "Achieving Happiness in the Home."

A Miniature Cutout Kitchen

Free Gift

Each person attending the first day's meeting will be given a miniature cardboard cutout kitchen—an exact replica of the model kitchen used in the Food Institute. Be sure to ask for yours.

Above is pictured the attractive model kitchen in which all programs of the 1938 Gasco Food Institute will be held, as it appears on the stage of Memorial Hall.

THE Circleville Herald, The Gas Company and prominent Circleville Merchants cooperate to present the 1938 Gasco Food Institute, opening tomorrow after noon at 2:00 at Memorial Hall. This year's program presents many outstanding features which are unique to cooking schools. Each day's program is packed full of the newest ideas in modern cooking, dramatically demonstrated in a manner that's utterly different and highly entertaining. All demonstrations are conducted in a model kitchen especially constructed for the Food Institute.

Featured in the three day event is Miss Katherine Thiele, special food lecturer. Her background and experience qualify her not only as a noted authority on cooking and home economics, but also, as a charming and pleasing hostess as well. She is ably assisted by Miss Maxine Robertson, home service representative of The Gas Company in Circleville. Mr. Ronald Lowe is manager of the Institute in charge of all arrangements. Each day's program will be entirely different and will begin at 2:00 each afternoon.

Canada in Furor Over Raids
Under Quebec's Padlock Law;
Shops, Homes Invaded, Closed

By DAVID GRIFFIN

Central Press Canadian Writer
MONTREAL, Mar. 15.—All Canada is observing the battle over Quebec's "padlock" law. There are columns in newspapers over
it. Liberals declare Quebec already is a "Fascist province". To which assertion, of course, there are denials.

On March 27, 1937, the Quebec legislature, passed a measure which placed into the hands of the provincial attorney general the power to close any house he thought was being used as a center for "bolsevist propaganda".

Thereby the law-makers of Canada's oldest province, which is pre-ponderantly of conservative French extraction, touched off a storm of dissent, not only from those who might be hit by the new law, but
from all shades of liberal opinion
in Canada.

Cry "Dictatorship!"

From public platforms and from the purely liberal section of the press, arose cries of "dictatorship!" for under the new law, they pointed out, the owner of the suspect house has little recourse to the courts.

The law is self-explanatory. It follows: "It shall be illegal for any person who possesses or occupies a house within the province,
to use it, or allow any person to use it to propagate communism or bolseivism by any means whatsoever.

"The attorney general, upon satisfactory proof that an infringement of section 3 (above)
has been committed, may order
the closing of the house against its use for any purpose whatsoever
for the period of one year."

When Premier Maurice Duplessis, who is also the attorney general, sponsored this measure
through the Quebec house, he did so with the avowed purpose of making any discussion of communism or bolseivism impossible in the province. Under terms of the law any building, whether private house or public hall, at which matters which officials could term
"communism" was discussed, could be padlocked for one year, purely
at the discretion of the attorney general. The clause stating that he might do so "upon satisfactory proof" was not qualified with checks or balances on his power in this respect.

What Could Occur

Any library having volumes by Karl Marx on its shelves could be closed. Similarly possession of a magazine containing an article
sympathetic to left wing movements would render a home owner liable. On strict interpretation, if a householder remarked within his own portals that the lot of women was better in Russian than under the democracies, he would be discussing communism favorably, and,
while the attorney general might not proceed against him in this instance, the home owner would be bringing himself within reach of the padlock law—with the prospect of being closed out of his home for one year—at the discretion of the attorney general.

In fact seven residences were raided in Montreal within two days, most of them homes of officials of the Left Wing newspaper La Clarte, but including also the homes of one or two men prominent in trades unions, and though piles of papers and documents
were carted away, none of the houses was padlocked. Jean Perron, chief editor of La Clarte, has moved his headquarters to Toronto
where the newspaper now is published. Copies are smuggled into Montreal in a game of hide-and-

Some folks think Anthony Eden,
former British foreign secretary,
can come back, but the price of the "Eden hat" has dropped from $5 to 98 cents.

Home of La Clarte, left wing newspaper, one of many places closed
by means of Quebec's "padlock law" which empowers the attorney general to close any house he thought was being used as a center for "bolsevist propaganda".

seek with the Quebec provincial police officials.

To those of liberal opinion the biggest objections in the laws are as follows

1. While it is aimed specifically against communism, it does not define communism.

2. The accused person is punished without due legal process.
There is no trial. The attorney general, upon receipt of "satisfactory proof", can order the closure.
The law does not say what constitutes satisfactory proof. In fact, it does not say that the attorney general himself must be satisfied with the proof. The implication is that any official of his department can order the closure.

3. Only after the punishment has been meted out can there be an appeal to the courts, and then the onus is on the accused to prove that he is not a Communist.
In view of the fact that the law
fails to define what a Communist or a Bolsevist is, legal authorities
hold that the appellant is up against a difficult proposition.

R. A. Reid, K. C., one of Ontario's leading constitutional lawyers, holds that the law was unconstitutional, invading federal authority. "It attempts to make new crimes and new criminal laws,
which is a matter for the Dominion," he contends. "It also sets up new criminal procedure, which is a violation of court practice as defined by Dominion statute, and it violates the Dominion evidence act.
(Similar to the United States act,
both were founded on the principle
that a man is innocent until proved guilty.)

La Clarte was closed up a short time ago, and the Modern Book shop was padlocked for one year.

Several days ago the quarters of Friends of the Soviet Union was raided by Montreal police. Among other things they seized a copy of
"The Canadian Messenger of the Sacred Heart", a Catholic publication, and several books by Charles Dickens. The place was not padlocked despite the fact that police took away a truckload

FLORIDANS ASK
ANGLERS' PARK

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UP)—
Establishment of a Marine Park
to encompass the waters of Biscayne Bay will be sought in the Florida legislature this spring.

A bill already has been drafted
and will be introduced at the session, according to Donald L. Mc-Carthy, executive secretary of the Miami Beach Rod and Reel club.
Fishing with rod would be permitted throughout the proposed
park and the proposal envisages improved facilities for anglers.

"The waters surrounding Miami Beach, which in reality is an island
flanked by the Atlantic and Biscayne Bay, are among the most unusual in the world," McCarthy said. "The U. S. Bureau of Fisheries has identified 653 varieties of fish in Florida area to date and all of them probably can be found in this restricted area."

The Marine Park would embrace
both the upper and lower bays.
It would be 12 miles long and 3 miles wide. Commercial fisheries nets within the bay or its approaches would be forbidden as would all other types of market fishing. The bill would call for the establishment of a boat patrol,
the removal of unnecessary obstructions blocking or diverting natural fish channels and rigid protection against pollution. Provision would be made for the ultimate establishment of a guide
service to show and instruct visitors in the many aspects of marine life within the bay and its outlets to the sea and inlets from the Everglades.

Of the species of fish found in the bay or in the ocean, the best known are the Gulf Stream game
fish such as sailfish, blue and white marlin, albacore, blue fin
tuna, the rare but highly prized allison or yellow tuna, the bonito and dolphin. They follow the Gulf Stream, some 35 miles wide here, and are most successfully caught along its edges, one of which is 2 1/2 to 3 miles off Miami Beach.

Street Drinkers Fined

WEST PLAINS, Mo. (UP)—
Persons caught drinking intoxicants on the streets, alleys or stairways here are fined from $1 to $50.

Tussaud's Loses Trinkets

LONDON (UP)—The "dummy"
V. C. on the breast of the wax figure of Jack Cornwall, boy naval hero, has been stolen from Madame

Tussaud's Museum here. During the past year dozens of imitation jewelry, snuff boxes and buttons were removed from figures of royalty, literary celebrities and criminals.

HOT CONTESTS SCHEDULED FOR STATE TOURNAMENT

COLUMBUS, March 15 — (UP) — The pairings for the first round of the state high school basketball championship tournament in both the A and B divisions gave promise today of lively encounters when the curtain goes up on the annual scholastic classic Thursday.

With their opponents selected for the opening games, the 16 teams in each class eyed the records of their foes, gauging their probable chances for advancing into the quarter finals.

Some of the ambitious quintets are expected in town tomorrow, for arrangements have been made for practice workouts to be held either on the Coliseum floor at the state fairgrounds or in the Ohio State university gymnasium Wednesday and Thursday morning.

In class A the test between Hamilton, the defending champion, with 18 wins and three losses to its credit for the season, against Akron East with 11 wins and eight defeats, headlined the first day's card. The other games most likely to attract attention on the basis of past performance are New Philadelphia vs. Xenia; Canton McKinley vs. Toledo Woodward; Newark vs. Youngstown East.

The B class standouts are Upper Arlington, the defending champion against North Baltimore; Bettsville vs. West Milton; Hartsville vs. Radnor; and New Boston vs. Cadiz; Canfield vs. Shawnee.

NEW YORK, March 15 — (UP) — Colorado and Temple clash tomorrow night in the final of the first national invitation basketball tournament and the winner will leave Madison Square Garden with a strong claim to the mythical collegiate championship of the nation.

Temple, eastern conference champion, smothered Oklahoma A. and M., Missouri conference titleholder, 56-44, last night and today was an 8-5 favorite over Colorado's Golden Buffaloes. The Buffs were pressed to the limit to win their semi-final tilt, 48-47, from New York university.

The Colorado-N. Y. U. game was one of the most thrilling contests ever seen in New York. The Violets came from behind a 11-point deficit at one stage in the first half and took the lead in the second half, only to have victory snatched from them in the last five seconds of play. Three field goals in the final half-minute, each one changing the lead, had the 13,000 spectators in a frenzy.

Henry Armstrong meets Baby Arizmendi tonight. LOS ANGELES, March 15 — (UP) — Henry Armstrong's dream of a triple boxing crown will be shelved temporarily tonight while he settles a personal argument with Baby Arizmendi, a clever little Mexican who has defeated him twice.

Three times in the last four years the two have met. Each bout was a slashing contest between the defensive wizardry of Arizmendi and the hampering offense of the diminutive Los Angeles Negro. Arizmendi won the first two engagements, one at 10 rounds and one at 12. Armstrong won the third, and there began a sensational climb that took him to the featherweight championship.

Olympic auditorium's 10,400 seats were sold out for the fourth meeting. Little chance was given Arizmendi; all bets were on the question of whether Armstrong could knock out the Mexican.

LOUIS AND THOMAS BE TRAINING FOR RING T. CHICAGO, March 15 — (UP) — Heavyweight Champion Louis and Challenger Thomas opened training in same loop gymnasium today, the title bout at the stadium April 1.

Thomas appeared briefly yesterday, limbered up on the light and when he finished said he was ready in top condition.

The champion came in from Summer home of his co-manager Julian Black at Sevensville, Mo.

Glitt's grocery won two hectic 10-pin games out of three Monday evening from the league-leading Gold Cliff chateau team in the city Industrial league while the Mader funeral service quintet was knocking off second place Coca Colas.

The league has four weeks yet to go, the Gold Cliff team holding a five-game advantage over the other teams.

The Gold Cliff outfit won the first game by 33 pins and lost the second by 26. The last game was tied at 872 pins, the Glitts winning in a roll-off.

The Mader outfit took the first two games of its match, dropping the final.

NO TIME TO DOUBLE
WHEN YOU hold a strong two-suit, it is not a time to make informative doubles. Better by far, bid one of your suits so that on a later turn you can complete the story to your partner by showing your other suit. If you don't show a suit on your first chance, but double instead, you may not know what to do on the next round. Doubles are usually most valuable on hands which can support any of three suits safely, play at no trump or offer one fine suit bid if your partner answers with misfits.

decided to double.
The opening lead was the heart 8, covered by the J and K. Six club tricks were next cashed, on which South noted West's discards were ♠ club, a heart and four spades. Reading him for five spades, South led a spade and put on the 7, which West was forced to win with the A. West then played his three high hearts and led the diamond K. This was won with the A in dummy and the spade 8 played to the K. Nine tricks were cashed, with the loss of three hearts and one spade. Correct bidding by West would have landed his side in four hearts or four spades, either of which could have been made.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

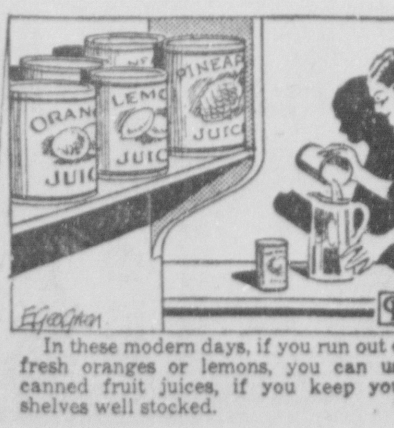

South made a third hand bid here of 1-Club, which West doubled. North put in a bid of 3-Clubs, East passed and South bid 3-No Trump. West now realized the mistake he had made in not showing one suit on the first round, as he feared showing either suit at the four level. As he had no alternative, he

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

With the club K cashed and followed by the A, how should South plan the play to make 5-Hearts?

In setting a table remember that all lines should go across or lengthwise. All dishes, linen and silver must be placed to follow this rule, or the effect is one of carelessness.

In these modern days, if you run out of fresh oranges or lemons, you can use canned fruit juices, if you keep your shelves well stocked.

COUNCIL TO JOIN IN RELIEF DISCUSSION WITH COUNTY AUTHORITIES

CITY OFFICIALS TO MEET EARLY WEDNESDAY EVE

Ordinance To Stop Sale Of Drinks At Midnight Given Attention Monday

NO DECISION REACHED

Trustees, Clerks and Mayors Called To Confab

Council will meet at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday for a short session, then members will attend the meeting in the courthouse called by the commissioners for a general discussion of relief problems. The county meeting will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Council as a committee held a brief session Monday night for a discussion of various matters, principally the ordinance stopping the sale of beer and liquor at 12 midnight until 5 a. m. of the succeeding day and prohibiting the sale on Sunday. It was discussed from various angles, but members took no vote on the question. Those present at the committee session were Ben Gordon, John Neuding, W. M. Reid, Julius Helwag, Frank Lynch, and Don Mason.

The county meeting will be attended by township trustees, clerks, mayors of cities and villages and councilmen. One of the important issues to be discussed will be the matter of legal residence of indigents applying for relief in the county.

30 G-MEN JOIN HUNT FOR CHILD MISSING 19 DAYS

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., March 15.—(UP)—The New Rochelle police force of 147 men and approximately 30 federal agents began an intensive search today for the body of Peter Levine, 12-year-old school boy who was kidnapped 19 days ago for $30,000 ransom.

That officers had more expectation of finding the boy dead than alive was indicated by the fact that the search was started in a three-square-mile region which contains several wooded areas.

The search was the first open activity by local and federal officers since the boy disappeared Feb. 24 while on the way home from junior high school. Murray Levine, father of the boy, said yesterday he had yielded to police insistence that it was time for officers, who hitherto had maintained a "hands off" policy at his request, to enter the case.

He said, however, that "the way is still open" for the kidnapers to renew the contact lost after a ransom note was received Feb. 28.

The search began in the northern section of the city in which the Levine home is situated. The city was divided into 10 sections, four of which will be gone over today.

was designated by Hitler Statthalter or governor of the German province of Austria.

The crowd uproariously greeted a detachment of German Uhlans who rode past to the tune of "Prinz Eugen," who was the defender of Vienna against the Turks. Behind them came a battalion of Austrian artillery, famed for its beautiful white horses.

As three artillery batteries passed, each gun drawn by six magnificent milk white horses, Hitler briskly saluted and the crowd shouted "Sieg Heil."

Approximately 65,000 miles of roads and 130,000 miles of trails now are maintained in the 157 U. S. national forests.

HISTORY TO LIVE IN GHOST TOWN

SHAWNEETOWN, O. (UP)—This flood-wrecked community will soon become a ghost town of the Ohio river, but several historic landmarks are to be preserved in a state park.

Several buildings with historic significance—and some noted for unusual architecture—are to be paid for out of the $150,000 appropriated to purchase the town site for a park.

Shawneetown, itself, wrecked by last year's floods, will be moved three miles away from the Ohio river to a point well out of reach of high waters.

Old Hotel Saved

Among buildings to be saved is the Riverview Hotel, two-story structure well-known during the hey-day of river traffic. Many persons of prominence who participated in territorial development of southern Illinois and nearby states were its guests.

Another structure to be included in the park is the First National Bank building, 99 years old. The bank building boasts five tall columns considered among the best examples of Doric architecture. It was built in 1839 of stone brought down the Ohio from eastern quarries. It cost the state $80,000 to build, but was sold during the war for $6,000.

A brick two-story residence of colonial design remains as the reminder of the first bank in Illinois territory. It was here that John Marshall established the bank in a room of his home under an act of Congress.

Refused Loan To Chicago

In 1830 the City of Chicago sent men here on horseback to borrow $1,000 to aid its desperate financial situation. Marshall refused the loan because Chicago then was a struggling village on Lake Michigan.

Shawneetown was a pioneering "too far from Shawneetown to amount to anything."

The Methodist Church building, 100 years old, veteran of two floods, and the courthouse also, will be preserved.

The latest in sweaters is the casual cardigan of white or pastel sweat-shirt material, quite long and collarless.

OLD TIMER SAYS 'CALAMITY JANE' ONCE WAS LADY

FT. PIERRE, S. D. (UP)—This is the story of how two-gun "Calamity Jane," notorious Western woman character, friend of "Wild Bill" Hickok, tried to "straighten up"—and failed.

The story is related by Charley Fales, who remembers the incident as if it were "just yesterday."

"Calamity Jane" made her living from her early teens by doing a man's work. She labored with a railroad construction gang, and liked the whole crew when they failed to tender her "proper respect."

She later turned cowboy and gambler, and wherever she went,

"became one of the leading characters in town," Fales said.

"Calamity was living in Pierre at the time," Fales said. "Her fame as a hard character had spread all over the country."

"One day a lady from the East drove into town with her husband and approached Calamity, saying she'd heard of her and was interested in her."

"The lady told Calamity that if she'd leave her guns off, quit smoking and drinking and lead a normal feminine life, she'd give her a home for the rest of her days."

"Well, Calamity went East with the lady... and was gone three years."

"At the end of that time she stepped off a wagon train, dressed in a long skirt, white waist and a flowery hat."
